

Univ.-A/Prof. MD. Mehmet A. KARAMERCAN; Ankara, Turkey

Attending Physician, Lecturer at Gazi University School of Medicine, Department of Emergency Medicine
Director of Quality of Care of Emergency Medicine Department

Full Member Sep 18, 2014 – to present; Chair since Sept 10, 2018; representing Turkey

Main Qualifications:

Emergency Medicine, Traumatology and Invasive Procedures, Quality of Care in ED

Scientific Focus:

- Trauma teams, and acute care of trauma patients
- Geriatric Emergency Medicine (Full member of EuSEM Section of Geriatric Emergency Medicine)
- Hemorrhagic Shock and resuscitation
- Experimental trauma models

Three publications representing the focus of actual research and interest:

1. Modified Early Warning Score and VitalPac Early Warning Score in geriatric patients admitted to emergency department.

Dundar ZD, Ergin M, Karamercan MA, Ayranci K, Colak T, Tuncar A, Cander B, Gul M. Eur J Emerg Med. 2016 Dec;23(6):406-412.

2. Can peripheral blood mononuclear cells be used as a proxy for mitochondrial dysfunction in vital organs during hemorrhagic shock and resuscitation?

Karamercan MA, Weiss SL, Villarroel JP, Guan Y, Werlin E, Figueredo R, Becker LB, Sims C. Shock. 2013 Dec;40(6):476-84.

3. Microscopic hematuria as a marker of blunt abdominal trauma in rats: description of an experimental model. Karamercan MA, Sevgili AM, Karamercan A, Atilla P, Balkanci ZD, Karamercan G, Aytac AB. J Trauma. 2011 Sep;71(3):687-93.

