

EUSEM Young Doctors Fellowships in Non-Invasive Ventilation Awarded

We are delighted to announce that Dr. Heather Wieman from Norway and Dr. Dalip Kumar from the United Kingdom have been selected for European Society for Emergency Medicine Young Doctors Fellowships in non-invasive ventilation. Their fellowships will take place at the Andrea Hospital Vercelli, Italy, under the auspices of prof. Dr. Roberta Petrino, president-elect of EuSEM. We wish them all the best during their time in Italy and with their future careers!

Dr. Heather Wieman decided to specialise in Emergency Medicine (EM) after experiencing EM in the United States, Poland and South Africa. One of the challenges she has faced is that EM is a young specialty and in some European countries EM is not recognised as a specialty. Living in Norway, a lot of effort is being made to increase standards in EM. For the last year she has been working in an Emergency Department (ED) south of Oslo. Her interests cover ultrasound, airway, sedation and nerve blocks. Outside of the hospital you can find her in the woods hiking, scuba diving in some warm place, or checking out some good music.

Dr. Dalip Kumar is currently working as an acting consultant in the ED at Southend University Hospital NHS Foundation Trust. He has excelled in his current role as a young ED consultant and has excellent core knowledge of the ED clinical curriculum and superb interpersonal skills both with staff and patients. He has also taken the responsibility of the department lead for clinical documents and guidelines, and has worked as a team leader and developed innovative quality improvement projects and clinical pathways for the patient care in the ED. He is also an educational and clinical supervisor and enhanced GMC appraiser for the trust hospital and ED trainee doctors. He has received many awards and was recently granted the innovative fund application for the SAS doctor award by the Health Education East of England.
